

Dear Members,

I hope that you are all coping well with the second lockdown that we find ourselves in. I am using the time to build and refurbish the pub. I have nearly finished the living quarters and I am thinking of ideas for the bar and public rooms. Things are looking good so far.

Remember the brick-stitch ear-rings I was making last month? Well... I gave up, the thread kept breaking. I may try again now I have some new glasses!

Helen and Ann have sent me lots of lovely photos of the things they have been making recently, so this month I shall let the pictures do the talking!

Club Matters

I have been having a sort through some of my dolls house mags and passed a few on to Helen but I have been looking through them to see if I can find items that maybe we could do as a challenge each month. What do you think?

I can email the instructions and then we can make them and send me a photo of the item that you have made and I will put them in the newsletter each month. It would be like having a virtual club each month. What do you think? Maybe we could do it in turn.

Did you like Ann's idea of completing a box file project, do you remember the stationery shop that she made it into. We could make a whole high street of shops etc.

Let me know what you think and we could start our projects in January and by September (birthday time) hopefully we will be back at the Methodist centre.

We'll stay safe as we head into the next lockdown and happy miniaturizing.

Beverley

This is a Christmas tree fairy Ann has made by 'Quilling'

Quilling is an art form that involves the use of strips of paper that are rolled, shaped, and glued together to create decorative designs.

How about this for a project?

Ann has just finished this 1/144th scale model.

Such fantastic detail for an item so small !

Helen writes:

Please find attached a photograph of Sunnydale now with Christmas decorations. The wreath on the door was made at the Club, the Christmas before last, I think and of course the little sleigh we made from Paul's 3D printer design last Christmas. We could never have imagined at that time what a year 2020 and Christmas 2020 was to behold!

The other photographs are a set of yellow gingham curtains with the fabric being purchased at Miniaturia (not sure if that is the correct spelling!) last year. I now plan to make a window blind in the same fabric for the kitchen window above the sink.

Take care. Hope to see you soon.

Love from Helen x

Ann has made this lovely fairy house and woodland scene from polymer clay, and large foliage and fairies made with Artista soft, a form of air drying clay.

Dates for your diary 2020

Father Christmas is still coming but everything else is cancelled!

Next Meeting: Cancelled until further notice.
